Assessment of Mitral
Regurgitation Using Color Doppler Echocardiography, in a Three-Dimensional Perspective.
Color Doppler echocardiography (CDE) provides information about the flow through valves.
However, the lack of spatial information still remains a key limitation for the assessment of mitral regurgitation (MR) severity. This study hypothesized that MR severity can be better assessed using three-dimensional (3-D) analysis from the apical approach. Patients undergoing mitral valve (MV) surgery were prospectively included. Before surgery, pre- and post-operative CDE were performed. To assess MR severity, a 3-D approach was performed, using the following method: conventional bi-dimensional (2-D) echocardiography
